

About Wild Girl Publishing

Wild Girl Publishing offers literary and artistic works of beauty and spirit that speak to the soul and help bring forth a new way of living on behalf of the earth and all beings.

We are a small independent press formed by a group of writers in Santa Cruz, California. We have particular interest in publishing the work of new voices and of women writers.

The name of our publishing house emerged during a writing retreat in the red-wood forest of the Ben Lomond mountains. In that beautiful place, Jane Nyberg, founder of the press, reconnected to the wild girl within herself—the one who used to run free, chasing the wind, climbing into treetops, making trails through empty lots, the one who boldly spoke her mind and knew she belonged on the earth. That wild girl was jubilantly happy to be recognized once again. From this joy was born the intention to publish books to encourage each of us to know our own wild souls
